This book has detailed information on all the diverse components of an export operation. Phone (800) 526-0651 for this publication, and to learn about the dozens of other great books supplied by Dun and Bradstreet.

International Trade Reporter: Export Reference Manual

This three-volume set gives extensive country-specific information as well as general guidelines on how to export into the world economy. For more information, phone (800) 372-1033 or visit www.bna.com.

International Market Research Sources

THE PRIMARY SOURCE FOR ALL INTERNATIONAL TRADE INFORMATION:

WWW.EXPORT.GOV

The website www.export.gov is operated by the Commercial Service of the U.S. Department of Commerce and is free to U.S. firms (registration is required). The Commerce Service maintains offices at U.S. Embassies in 88 foreign countries and in 48 U.S. states plus Puerto Rico. This website includes:

- Over 15,000 international market research reports;
- Overview of market conditions/opportunities in 100 foreign countries;
- A calendar of trade shows and other important trade events domestically and overseas;
- Direct e-mail and electronic links to all Commercial Service Offices, domestic and international;
- Description of, and access to, all U.S. Dept of Commerce export assistance programs and services;
- Information on sources of trade financing;
- Publications including the U.S. Dept. of Commerce "Basic Guide to Exporting";
- Links to other export assistance resources of the Federal Government.

Some U.S. Department of Commerce export programs/services:

The Country Commercial Guide (CCG)

The Commercial Service offers a Country Commercial Guide, which provides detailed information on market conditions, sales channels, best prospects, and much more. These guides are available free of charge at www.export.gov/mrktresearch/, click on market research and create a free account.

International Partner Search (IPS)

Find qualified overseas sales representatives, agents, distributors, joint venture partners, licensees, franchise or strategic partners for your product. Offered in over 80 countries. Commercial Service officers abroad identify prospects that have examined your product literature and company information and have expressed an interest in representing your products.

Commercial News USA

An export marketing magazine published six times a year which promotes U.S. products and services worldwide. Disseminated in 176 countries to screened agents, distributors, buyers and end-users. CNUSA is also available online. Selected portions of CNUSA are reprinted in business newsletters in several countries. U.S. companies advertising in CNUSA have seen over $100 million in exports, 872 export successes, and an average return on investment of $120,000 per exporter. For more information: www.export.gov/cnusa

International Company Profiles

Provides background information on the reliability of prospective trading partners. Information provided includes type or organization, year established, size, general reputation, territory covered, sales, product lines, principal owners, financial information and trade references, with recommendation from on-site commercial officers as to suitability as a trading partner.

Gold Key Service

Offered by U.S. Department of Commerce offices in 47 countries. This is a custom-tailored service for U.S. firms planning to visit a country. The service combines orientation briefings, market research, introductions to potential partners, interpreter service for meetings and assistance in developing a sound market strategy and effective follow-up.
